The private market has split in two. At the top, Anthropic's employees passed on selling at the $350B tender price in April, and within weeks, secondary desks were pricing the company above $1 trillion. The IPO filing is now in, and price talk is above $1.5T. OpenAI's $7B August tender cleared at $852B, flat to its last round, and Anthropic now trades above OpenAI on the secondary market. Databricks is changing hands at or above its $190B round while its IPO slips to 2027.

Below those names, the picture is different. Third-quarter volume on Rainmaker was up 57% from the second quarter, but roughly 84% of trades cleared below the company's last primary valuation. There is plenty of liquidity, but most of it is going to a short list of companies, and sellers elsewhere are accepting discounts to get trades done. With the IPO window only partly open, secondaries have become the main route to liquidity, and buyers are choosing carefully.

Rainmaker Securities presents Anduril as the November 2026 Raindrop of the Month. Founded in 2017, Anduril has rapidly established itself at the forefront of modern homeland defense. Instead of sending thousands of foot soldiers into enemy territory, Anduril builds battle-ready machines and sensors designed to be controlled from overseas. From AI-piloted vehicles and state-of-the-art devices to Lattice (an AI command system coordinating and directing all the machines at once), Anduril has revolutionized the frontier of warfare. Just nine years in, they are one of the most requested names on our desk.

Lattice: AI central command

Every Anduril system reports into Lattice: a singular AI command and control platform (the AI general of the army). Lattice processes all these feeds at once, calculates, and directs thousands of machines simultaneously to do its bidding in real time.

2026 SO FAR

MARCH
Army signs a ten-year enterprise contract with a $20B ceiling, replacing more than 120 separate procurements. Fury production begins at Arsenal-1 in Ohio.

MAY
$5B Series H closes at a $61B valuation, led by Thrive Capital and Andreessen Horowitz. Roughly double the June 2025 round.

JULY TO SEPTEMBER
Fury fires a live AIM-120 AMRAAM, then flies in formation with F-35s. Reuters reports talks for a round near $100B, with a second stage near $110B within a year. Not confirmed by the company.

OCTOBER
Navy awards up to $2.9B for Virginia-class submarine components, and Anduril commits $3.7B to a new Maryland shipyard. Army adds up to $1.8B to field NGC2 with I Corps.
